

Special Issue

Stem and Cancer Stem Cells, Same Pathways for Different Malignancy

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue invites original research articles and reviews that cover all aspects of the field, with the aim to improve our understanding of how the conversion of the healthy stem cells to cancer stem cells (CSCs) underlies tumor relapse after surgical removal and fuels tumor growth and invasiveness. We are particularly interested in fundamental investigations using in vitro, or experimental animal models as well as translational studies. Moreover, this Special Issue welcomes the submission of manuscripts focusing on the similarities and differences of these different types of stem cells and their intrinsic propensity to degenerate to CSCs.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

A major strength of biological science is the diversity of approaches that biological scientists apply to their research problems. Biology reflects this diversity and brings together studies employing the varied experimental and theoretical approaches that are fueling biological discovery. Biology, the journal, is a fully peer-reviewed publication with a rapid and economical route to open access publication and is listed on PubMed. All articles are peer-reviewed and the editorial focus is on determining that the work is scientifically sound rather than trying to predict its future impact.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, PubAg, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (General Agricultural and Biological Sciences)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 17.4 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.5 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
