Advanced Research in Endocrine Tumor: Molecular Pathology, Biomarker and Target Therapy 2.0

Message from the Guest Editor

Recent developments in molecular analysis systems have clarified the pathogenesis, novel biomarkers, and prognostic prediction of several types of endocrine tumors, which resulted in significant revisions in the fourth edition of the World Health Organization's classification of endocrine tumors. Therefore, it would be very interesting to specifically focus on these novel findings. I invite you to submit an original research or review article for this Special Issue. It would be an honor to work with you.
