Bio-Inspired Porous Materials and Biomaterials

Message from the Guest Editor

In this Special Issue, the aim is to focus on bio-inspired porous materials, particularly those processed from sol-gel and self-assembly synthesis, accompanied by bio-inspired material processing techniques like hard templating, directional freeze-casting and 3D printed approaches. While the main emphasis will be given to the synthesis and design principles, and the problems associated with engineering aspects of fabricating advanced porous materials, including bio-ceramics, hydrogels, and composites, their in-vitro and in-vivo applications for bone and wound healing will also be highlighted.
