Interfacial Phenomena on Biomedicines

Message from the Guest Editor

The purpose of this Special Issue is to address the attributes of a wide variety of interfacial phenomena on any biomedicines at any hierarchies, such as transdermal administration, intracellular drug delivery, implants and biomaterials, and protein–drug interactions. This Special Issue will serve as a broad overview for scientists from multidisciplinary fields working on biointerfaces. I invite both original research articles as well as review articles; in vitro, in vivo, and in silico studies are welcome.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Biomedicines (ISSN 2227-9059) is an open access journal devoted to all aspects of research on human health and disease, the discovery and characterization of new therapeutic targets, therapeutic strategies, and research of naturally driven biomedicines, pharmaceuticals, and biopharmaceutical products. Topics include pathogenesis mechanisms of diseases, translational medical research, biomaterial in biomedical research, natural bioactive molecules, biologics, vaccines, gene therapies, cell-based therapies, targeted specific antibodies, recombinant therapeutic proteins, nanobiotechnology driven products, targeted therapy, bioimaging, biosensors, biomarkers, and biosimilars. The journal is open for publication of studies conducted at the basic science and preclinical research levels. We invite you to consider submitting your work to Biomedicines, be it original research, review articles, or developing Special Issues of current key topics.
