News about Structure and Function of Synapses: Health and Diseases

Message from the Guest Editor

The general strategy of this Special Issue has been focused on the structure and function of synapses which have intensely investigated over the last few years. The main expected results allude to the significant developments of synapses. Participation in the Special Issue is obtained from the best active research groups in the world. In case contributions in synaptic areas will be submitted independently to the journal, they will first be considered and, if approved, they will be submitted for classical review evaluation. Comprehensive reviews about synapses are approved. Please submit your title and abstract to establish a general view of the present Special Issue, available before submission of the complete reviews.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Biomedicines (ISSN 2227-9059) is an open access journal devoted to all aspects of research on human health and disease, the discovery and characterization of new therapeutic targets, therapeutic strategies, and research of naturally driven biomedicines, pharmaceuticals, and biopharmaceutical products. Topics include pathogenesis mechanisms of diseases, translational medical research, biomaterial in biomedical research, natural bioactive molecules, biologics, vaccines, gene therapies, cell-based therapies, targeted specific antibodies, recombinant therapeutic proteins, nanobiotechnology driven products, targeted therapy, bioimaging, biosensors, biomarkers, and biosimilars. The journal is open for publication of studies conducted at the basic science and preclinical research levels. We invite you to consider submitting your work to Biomedicines, be it original research, review articles, or developing Special Issues of current key topics.
