

Special Issue

Cannabinoids in Neurobehavioral Modulation

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to collect original articles or reviews (narrative or systematic) that mainly focus on the neurobehavioural actions derived from the use of cannabinoid compounds, from a translational point of view, by collecting preclinical and/or clinical data. Special attention will be given to manuscripts that provide relevant information from a therapeutic perspective on the use of cannabinoid compounds in the context of different disorders of the nervous system, as well as those related to the effects of cannabis use at different stages of life, in view of the increasing and worrying use worldwide, especially in vulnerable populations such as adolescents or pregnant women.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Biomolecules is a multidisciplinary open-access journal that reports on all aspects of research related to biogenic substances, from small molecules to complex polymers. We invite manuscripts of high scientific quality that pertain to the diverse aspects relevant to organic molecules, irrespective of the biological question or methodology. We aim for a competent, fair peer review and rapid publication. Please look at some of the exciting work that has been published in Biomolecules so far. We would be delighted to welcome you as one of our authors.
