Microbial Toxins and Pathogen Biodetection

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to announce an upcoming Special Issue in Biosensors titled “Microbial Toxins and Pathogen Biodetection”. This Special Issue seeks to bring together novel methods that can be useful in the detection of microbial toxins and pathogens for the development of point of care (PoC) devices, novel biosensors, and, in particular, microfluidics devices and nanobiosensors. Authors are invited to contribute with original research papers, review articles, and short communications that focus on the development and utilization of novel methods to ensure the rapid, simple, and low-cost detection of microbial toxins and pathogens in food, breeding farms, water, the environment, and for clinical applications. Dr. João H. P. M. Santos

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Biosensors is a leading journal, devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements, technological developments and scientific research in the exciting multidisciplinary area of biosensors. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of biosensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Special issues are devoted to specific technologies and applications, and a selection of the most outstanding papers each year is recognized. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite original papers, as well as timely reviews on cutting edge fields within the subject area.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, MEDLINE, PMC, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, Inspec, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Instruments and Instrumentation) / CiteScore -
Q1 (Instrumentation)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 21.8 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.8 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
