Psychotherapeutic Treatment for Anorexia Nervosa

Message from the Guest Editor

The goal of this Special Issue is to discuss the use of novel treatment modules to improve standard care for anorexia nervosa. Special attention will be given to two aspects, in particular: 1) the development and implementation of personalised approaches and 2) treatment adaptations based on i) age (i.e., children and adolescents vs. adults), specific comorbidities (e.g., affective and personality disorders, neurodevelopmental disorders) and ii) illness duration (i.e., short vs. longer duration). Scientific contributions based on the use of multimodal assessment methods, including psychometric measures, neuroimaging techniques and cognitive and neuropsychological testing are strongly encouraged.
