Quantifying Motor Neurone Disease: Advances and Challenges in Developing Biomarkers, Predictive Models and Outcome Measures

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue has been coordinated to facilitate discussion of the latest advances, as well as pertinent challenges, in the development of MND biomarkers and predictive models. We encourage submission of studies performed in human subjects within the following categories for this Special Issue:

- Original research articles investigating novel predictive models and candidate biomarkers in MND (including positive and negative results);
- Original research articles aiming to replicate or refine previously identified markers and models in MND;
- Original research articles and reviews highlighting important methodological or physiological considerations regarding candidate biomarkers or predictive modelling approaches in MND.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

You are invited to contribute a research article or a comprehensive review for consideration and publication in Brain Sciences (ISSN 2076-3425). Brain Sciences is an open access, peer-reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, research notes, and short communications on neuroscience. The scientific community and the general public can access the content free of charge as soon as it is published.

Editor-in-Chief

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, Embase, PSYINDEX, PsycInfo, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 16.2 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 1.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).

Recognition of Reviewers:

reviewers who provide timely, thorough peer-review reports receive vouchers entitling them to a discount on the APC of their next publication in any MDPI journal, in appreciation of the work done.
