Message from the Guest Editors

Radiomics and artificial intelligence are largely expanded in health care systems, mainly in the oncological field and in the imaging setting. Their role as biomarkers for adding new information to the diagnosis of cancer and to monitor the response to therapy in solid and hematological disease is continuously increasing.

- To evaluate the role of radiomics and artificial intelligence in the diagnosis of solid and hematological cancers.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Cancers (ISSN 2072-6694) is an international, online journal addressing both clinical and basic science issues related to cancer research. The journal will continue its open access format, which will certainly evolve to ensure that the journal takes full advantage of the rapidly changing world of information and knowledge dissemination. It publishes high-quality clinical, translational, and basic science research on cancer prevention, initiation, progression, and treatment, as well as other related topics, particularly to capture the most seminal studies in the rapidly growing area of immunology, immunotherapy, and tumor microenvironment.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q2 (Oncology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Oncology)
