Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Designing cancer vaccines has been at the forefront of cancer research for over 2 decades. In particular delivery methods used to stimulate effective and long lasting immune responses has been the major focus. This special issue will focus on delivery methods used for cancer vaccines and their outcomes in preclinical studies and clinical trials.

Cancers (ISSN 2072-6694) is an international, online journal addressing both clinical and basic science issues related to cancer research. The journal will continue its open access format, which will certainly evolve to ensure that the journal takes full advantage of the rapidly changing world of information and knowledge dissemination. It publishes high-quality clinical, translational, and basic science research on cancer prevention, initiation, progression, and treatment, as well as other related topics, particularly to capture the most seminal studies in the rapidly growing area of immunology, immunotherapy, and tumor microenvironment.
