Message from the Guest Editor

In recent years, the field of head and neck cancer surgery has witnessed remarkable advancements in many fields, driven by innovative techniques, technological developments, and a deeper understanding of tumor biology.

In this Special Issue, we will cover a wide range of topics related to head and neck cancer surgery, including, but not limited to, minimally invasive surgical techniques, robotic-assisted surgery, reconstructive surgery and microvascular techniques, surgical management of advanced and recurrent tumors, surgical innovations and technological advancements, multidisciplinary approaches to treatment planning and execution, surgical outcomes and quality-of-life assessments, patient-centered care and shared decision-making, and training and education in head and neck surgical oncology. The main objective of this Special Issue is to provide a comprehensive platform for researchers, clinicians, and healthcare professionals to share their research findings in the field of head and neck cancer surgery.
