The field of pulmonary oncology research has witnessed significant progress in recent years, with the development of new treatment modalities, innovative imaging techniques, and targeted therapies. This Special Issue aims to present the latest developments in pulmonary oncology research, focusing on the identification and characterization of novel therapeutic targets, advances in diagnosis and staging, and the development of personalized treatment strategies. The section will provide a platform for researchers and clinicians to share their latest findings and insights into the pathogenesis and treatment of lung cancer, mesothelioma, and other thoracic malignancies. We encourage the submission of original research articles and review articles that help to improve our understanding of pulmonary oncology.
