Update on the Management of Head & Neck Paragangliomas: Papers from the First International Congress, Piacenza, Italy September 20–22, 2023

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue of Cancers will focus on papers from the First International Congress “Update on the Management of Head & Neck Paragangliomas”, due to take place in Piacenza, Italy on October 20–22, 2023. The aim of the Congress, reflected in this Special Issue, is to give an up-to-date overview of the specialized head & neck paraganglioma field. The Congress papers will integrate current scientific developments with surgical management and will provide guidelines for early diagnosis, treatment and follow-up of patients and at-risk relatives.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Cancers is an international online journal addressing both clinical and basic science issues related to cancer research. The journal is publishing in Open Access format, which will certainly evolve to ensure that the journal takes full advantage of the rapidly changing world of information and knowledge dissemination. It publishes high-quality clinical, translational, and basic science research on cancer prevention, initiation, progression, and treatment, as well as other related topics, particularly to capture the most seminal studies in the rapidly growing area of immunology, immunotherapy, and tumor microenvironment.
