Dear Colleagues,

I am pleased to announce the winner of the Catalysts 2018 Travel Award, given to one outstanding PhD student. Shangqian Zhu, a PhD student in Minhua Shao's research group at the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology, has been selected as the winner from a pool of 95 applicants.

Shangqian's research focuses on the development of advanced catalysts and a fundamental understanding of CO₂ electrochemical reduction and fuel cell reactions. Shangqian will be attending the Americas International Meeting on Electrochemistry and Solid State Science (AiMES)/The Electrochemical Society (ECS) 234th meeting in Cancun, Mexico.

Congratulations to Shangqian and thanks to all who applied.
