

Special Issue

Electrochemical Sensors for Food Control, Environmental Analysis, and Diagnosis in Medicine

Message from the Guest Editors

Electrochemical sensors, as important analytical devices, are widely used for the determination of a broad range of analytes in several fields, including food control, environmental monitoring, and diagnostic analysis, due to their unique properties, such as functional diversity, miniaturization, intelligence, low cost, immediate application, and high sensitivity. This Special Issue aims to cover various aspects of electrochemical sensors and their applications. We invite all researchers working on electrochemical sensors to submit their original research studies to this Special Issue. Both review articles and research papers are welcome. The areas of particular interest to this Special Issue include but are not limited to:

- Electrochemical sensors and biosensors
- Screen-printed electrodes
- Electrochemical analysis
- DNA sensors
- Immunosensor
- Biosensor, biochip
- Nanomaterials

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Chemosensors continues to grow as a forum for all manners of sensing that encompass chemistry. Chemosensors is published in open access format – all articles and content are released on the internet immediately following acceptance, thus allowing unlimited access to the content as soon as it is published. We would be happy to have you join our growing list of authors.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), CAPus / SciFinder, Inspec, Engineering Village and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q2 (Instruments and Instrumentation) / CiteScore - Q1 (Physical and Theoretical Chemistry)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 20.5 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.8 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
