

Special Issue

New Electrodes Materials for Electroanalytical Applications

Message from the Guest Editors

There is currently a great deal of interest in the development of electroanalytical devices that could be applied in various disciplines, namely food, pharmaceutical, clinical, environmental, and forensic analyses. The gradual miniaturization of analytical instruments and the low costs required to acquire them make electroanalytical approaches a suitable tool for the development of screening assays used in field monitoring. This Special Issue will include original research papers, review articles, and short communications describing new electrode materials and their characterization. Through creating this Special Issue, we hope to contribute to the development of sophisticated electrochemical sensors applicable in the above-mentioned industries.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Chemosensors continues to grow as a forum for all manners of sensing that encompass chemistry. Chemosensors is published in open access format – all articles and content are released on the internet immediately following acceptance, thus allowing unlimited access to the content as soon as it is published. We would be happy to have you join our growing list of authors.

Editors-in-Chief

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), CAPus / SciFinder, Inspec, Engineering Village and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q2 (Instruments and Instrumentation) / CiteScore - Q1 (Physical and Theoretical Chemistry)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 20.5 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.8 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
