Advances of Chemical and Biosensors in China

Message from the Collection Editors

Chemosensors are a device that transforms chemical information, ranging from the concentration of a specific sample component to total composition analysis, into an analytically useful signal. The development of efficient chemosensors and biosensors is highly important in various aspects of biomedical science and analytical and environmental science. This Special Issue will provide an overview of the frontiers and progress of chemosensors and biosensors in China. Topics include but are not limited to: Electrochemical sensors Optical chemical sensors Mass-sensitive sensors Field-effect transistor sensors Catalytic sensors Acoustic and thermal sensors Sensor array Innovative materials and their sensing application Other sensors

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Chemosensors continues to grow as a forum for all manners of sensing that encompass chemistry. Chemosensors is published in open access format – all articles and content are released on the internet immediately following acceptance, thus allowing unlimited access to the content as soon as it is published. We would be happy to have you join our growing list of authors.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), CAPus / SciFinder, Inspec, Engineering Village and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q2 (Instruments and Instrumentation) / CiteScore -
Q1 (Physical and Theoretical Chemistry)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 20.5 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.8 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
