Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In the UK, a rising prevalence of children and adolescents with life-limiting diseases has been reported. Thus, there is a need for increasing care in both the in- and outpatient sectors. Especially in end-of-life care, children with life-limiting diseases can suffer from various symptoms, which can have a negative effect on the quality of life. This Special Issue invites you to contribute original research articles and reviews on "Palliative and End-of-Life Care in Pediatrics". The editors are delighted to review manuscripts which focus on symptom management, psychological aspects of care, special needs and problems in end-of-life care with all the perspectives of a multidisciplinary team. If you would like to contribute, please feel free to contact us.
