

Special Issue

Polyphenols as Cellular Metabolic Regulators

Message from the Guest Editors

Polyphenols are a large group of natural compounds well known for their specific functions in plants. However, due to the increase of the in vitro and in vivo experimental data some of these plant-based chemicals are also regarded as potential pharmaceutical compounds providing antipathogenic, anti-inflammatory and therapeutic effects on either human or animal cardiovascular system, brain, liver or kidney.

Therefore, this Special Issue is dedicated to present the latest research on various polyphenols as bioactive compounds and metabolic regulators in plant, bacterial, fungal, animal and human cells or experimental models.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PMC, PubMed, Embase, CAPus / SciFinder, FSTA, AGRIS, and
other databases.

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 17.8 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.7 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).

Recognition of Reviewers:

APC discount vouchers, optional signed peer review, and reviewer names are published annually in the journal.
