

Special Issue

Nanoparticles for Cosmetic Use and Their Application

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to highlight the use of nanoparticles in formulations for cosmetic use, showing the different applications in which they can be used, considering their inherent characteristics, but also their contribution in technological terms as vehicles of active ingredients. In addition, papers addressing the toxicity of nanoparticles, both to humans and the environment, are also of interest for this Special Issue, as well as the contribution and/or impact that nanoparticles may have in terms of environmental, economic and/or social sustainability. Approaches to regulatory issues, regarding the use of these nanomaterials, may also be considered. Both original research papers and review articles will be considered for this Special Issue.
