Fighting SARS-CoV-2 and Related Viruses

Message from the Guest Editors

Since the worldwide outbreak of COVID-19, the entire scientific community has mobilized to find ways to combat SARS-CoV-2, the coronavirus responsible for the disease. Studies began with assays involving repurposable drugs; since then, there have been thousands of clinical trials. Molecular modeling methods and artificial intelligence enabled the selection of numerous potentially effective agents. Screening of libraries of small molecules, more complex biomolecules, or extracts from natural sources remains the focus of many studies, whereas vaccines have emerged as the most widely employed weapon in response to the epidemic. This Topical Collection will cover all aspects involved in the fight against SARS-CoV-2 and related viruses. Reviews and research articles are preferred; however, hypotheses, opinions, and reports on clinical trials will also be considered.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Drugs and Drug Candidates is an open access initiative of MDPI (Basel, Switzerland). Do you wish to share your knowledge on marketed or newly approved drugs for human or veterinary use? Do you wish to disseminate your recent results on the search for novel promising drug candidates? Our journal, animated by a young and dynamic team, is the ideal platform! Your submission, carefully followed by an academic editor, will be peer-reviewed by experts in the field of the work and a first decision will be notified within no more than two weeks. Involved in drug design, drug synthesis, drug evaluation, or drug market, Drugs and Drug Candidates is of worthy recognition and value.

I look forward to handling your contributions in the very near future. Should you need any information, do not hesitate to contact us.
