Contemporary Endodontics: Progress and Prospects

Message from the Guest Editor

In recent years, significant advancements have taken place in the fields of endodontics and dental trauma. The aim of this Special Issue is to provide a platform for researchers who wish to publish scientific articles, with a particular emphasis on scientific innovation and clinically relevant insights. Contributions are welcome in the form of original research, review articles, and case studies. Potential topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Dental trauma;
- Endodontic regeneration;
- Root resorption;
- Immunology;
- Bacteriologic.

We would be delighted to serve as a forum for the dissemination of such contributions. Sincerely,

Guest Editor
