Recent Advances in Artificial Intelligence-Based Medical Image Analysis

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will explore the intersection of artificial intelligence and medical imaging techniques and the future impact of these rapidly changing technologies. All manuscripts on this topic, including original research and review articles, will be welcomed. Of particular interest are papers that focus on CT, PET, SPECT, MRI, microwave, and photoacoustic image reconstruction, and image analysis using common neural networks or generative adversarial networks (GANs).
