Pathology and Diagnosis of Liver Diseases

Message from the Guest Editor

We would like to announce that Diagnostics is launching a Special Issue titled “Pathology and Diagnosis of Liver Diseases”. With the advancements in technology and the development of tools based on artificial intelligence in the field of medicine, our understanding of liver diseases is consistently improving. An increasing number of papers that utilize these tools are being published. We plan to showcase the cutting-edge work carried out by researchers, with an emphasis on the pathology and diagnosis of liver diseases. In addition, this Special Issue will highlight the conventional aspects of this topic and what we can expect to witness as clinicians and researchers in the future. We look forward to contributions from experts across the globe for this Special Issue.
