Parkinson's Disease and Other Movement Disorders: Diagnosis and Management

Message from the Guest Editors

Parkinson's disease and other movement disorders are commonly seen conditions in our neurology clinics. Keeping up with the advances in the diagnosis and management of these different conditions will provide clinicians with new knowledge for early diagnosis and prompt treatment. This will ultimately produce opportunities for better patient care. This field is very dynamic, and we need to continue learning and adapting to these changes. All of these new and emerging diagnostic and therapeutic approaches are for the benefit of our patients. This Special Issue aims to provide updates on the diagnosis and management of Parkinson's disease and other movement disorders.
