Diagnosis and Management of Pelvic Venous Diseases

Message from the Guest Editor

Pelvic venous disorders mainly include male varicocele and female pelvic congestion syndrome (PCS), which are common diseases with high predominance in young patients and have a high impact on the quality of life and infertility. It also includes rarer obstructive pathologies such as May-Thurner syndrome or Nutcracker syndrome. This Special Issue aims to publish original and/or review articles covering state-of-the-art imaging and endovascular techniques for the diagnosis and treatment of pelvic and peripheral venous diseases. We call for translational and clinical research aiming to improve knowledge in those objectives. Clinical and preclinical or experimental studies are all welcome.
