Current and Potential Therapeutic Strategies for Heart Failure

Message from the Guest Editor

Despite significant advances in pharmacotherapy and therapy, heart failure remains a major cause of mortality and morbidity, and is a growing healthcare burden worldwide. However, there has been a growing understanding of the underlying disease mechanisms of heart failure, although there remain gaps in the knowledge, particularly with respect to acute decompensated heart failure, heart failure with preserved ejection fraction, and in the management of prevalent comorbidities that contribute to its pathophysiology, such as diabetes and anaemia. This Special Issue will focus on recent research and developments in these areas.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

Diseases is an international, peer-reviewed, open access, multidisciplinary journal that focuses on the latest outstanding research concerning diseases and conditions. Research articles, reviews, and other contents are released on the Internet immediately after acceptance. This journal aims to cover international conferences and symposia as new targets.

Diseases is increasingly gaining acceptance and visibility within scholars, and after only a few years of life, Diseases is now also covering specific topics with dedicated special issues. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.
