Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

The purpose of this Special Issue is to enhance the knowledge on and practical applications of personcentered and family-centered burn care. This Special Issue aims to draw attention to research and clinical approaches or interventions that contribute to the knowledge and clinical practice associated with person-centered care and family-centered care for patients with burns and their relatives. Studies related to nursing, wound care, pain, psychological wellbeing, and quality of life are encouraged. Research articles, reviews, and commentaries are all welcome.
