

Special Issue

Leading Edge Technologies Ensuring Education

Message from the Guest Editor

The purpose of the special issue is to provide a rich collection of papers that evidence instances where ensuring education, teaching and learning has been shown to arise from uses of leading edge technologies. Educators and policy makers continue to invest in leading edge technologies across the educational spectrum, whether this is within the compulsory, post-compulsory, special, vocational or adult education sectors. It is important that educators and policy makers understand where leading edge technologies are essential, how they have been utilised to ensure education, teaching and learning, and what the outcomes of those uses are for the end users. This special issue is intended to provide a starting point that offers a core of evidence to enable researchers, policy makers and practitioners to access key findings emerging at this point in time.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

From its first issue in 2011, Education Sciences (ISSN 2227-7102) has grown as a scholarly international open access journal. Its aim remains to publish extended full-length research papers that have the scope to substantively address current issues in education. As a member of the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE), our goal has been to disseminate high quality research. Our publisher, MDPI, takes the responsibility to enforce a rigorous double-blind peer-review together with strict ethical policies and standards to ensure to add high quality scientific works to the field of scholarly publication.
