Special Issue

Network Protocols and Cybersecurity

Message from the Guest Editors

At present, network protocols serve as the backbone of modern communication systems, enabling seamless data transfer across various devices and platforms. However, with the increasing reliance on technology, cyber threats have grown more sophisticated and pervasive, posing significant challenges to the security and integrity of network communications. This Special Issue aims to explore the latest advancements, research, and innovations in the realms of Network Protocols and Cybersecurity, shedding light on emerging threats, mitigation strategies, and cuttingedge solutions. Scope and Topics This Special Issue seeks submissions covering a wide array of topics related to Network Protocols and Cybersecurity.
