

Special Issue

Protocols and Mechanisms for Emerging Network Technologies

Message from the Guest Editors

This century is marked by the rapid evolution of networking technologies that provide connectivity and communication infrastructure for a diverse range of smart applications. This Special Issue's goal is to present theoretical and experimental research that focus on upcoming technologies and developing trends in the multidisciplinary field of next-generation systems. Review papers and surveys of the highest caliber are encouraged. Topics of interest include, but are not limited to:

- Algorithms, protocols and architecture for space-air-ground integrated networks (SAGINs);
- Emerging standardization-issue-related network technologies;
- Algorithms, protocols and architecture for beyond-5G networks and emerging 6G networks;
- Protocols, services and applications for vehicular networks, internet of vehicles (IoV), vehicular cloud, UAVs, internet of drones and urban air mobility (UAMs) scenarios;
- Security, privacy and trust management within emerging network technologies.
