

Special Issue

Fuzzy Systems and Data Science

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue is aimed at researchers and scholars who wish to propose fuzzy computational intelligence methods and models of knowledge extraction and approximate reasoning for application to massive and multidimensional data. We hope this Special Issue will attract numerous researchers who will help in providing an update on the latest developments in the field of fuzzy-based computational intelligence techniques in the presence of massive data and their important applications in complex real-world problems. Some topics that the contributions may focus on include:

- fuzzy models in time series analysis;
- fuzzy clustering models and fuzzy approaches to classify massive and multidimensional data;
- fuzzy multiobjective optimization methods in data analysis;
- hybrid approaches of fuzzy machine learning and fuzzy deep learning;
- type-2 fuzzy rule-based systems;
- fuzzy massive data fusion techniques;
