

Special Issue

Internet-to-Everything (I2X) Communications, Applications and Management in Future Networks

Message from the Guest Editors

Internet of Things (IoT) is becoming ever more pervasive in everyday life, connected to an ever-greater array of diverse physical objects. This brings a massive number of smart objects/devices together in integrated and interconnected heterogeneous networks, making the internet even more useful. The purpose of this Special Issue is to bring together researchers and practitioners from many fields into a common platform, to report on the state-of-the-art in terms of research focused on energy optimization, machine and deep learning, cybersecurity, robotics and remote sensing at local to global scales, among many others, and exploring various effective, research and practice in IoT networks. The Special Issue also aims to reveal various emerging factors that affect the use of IoT technology in different fields such as industrial, healthcare, agriculture, smart cities, etc.
