New Trends in Cybersecurity and Privacy Protection

Message from the Guest Editors

While informatization and digitization have been fundamentally innovative for the way we live and work during the last decade, they have also exposed security issues for individuals, businesses and large-scale national organizations. This has introduced new vulnerabilities and privacy challenges for cybersecurity experts, making the uninterrupted supply of secure and trustworthy networked services more challenging than ever. This Special Issue aims to advance the state of the art by gathering original research in the field of software-intensive systems, exploring the fundamental connections between the theory of information protection and extensive research on security issues for digital assets and various IT systems and devices.
