Financing Renewable Energy in the Energy Market

Message from the Guest Editor

The is inviting submissions to a Special Issue of Energies on the subject area of “Financing Renewable Energy in the Energy Market”. The aim of this Special Issue on “Financing Renewable Energy in the Energy Market” is to analyze the possibilities of financing investments in renewable energy sources, taking into account different financing models, i.e., models based on aid, private, and hybrid capital. It is also important to present the experience gained so far and to conduct a comparative analysis of the use of individual sources of financing investments in renewable energy sources and their costs in selected countries, in the European Union, and in the world. The analysis may also be conducted by type, with a breakdown by the sources of financing investments in:

- Wind energy;
- Biogas;
- Photovoltaics;
- Biomass;
- Hydropower;
- Geothermal;
- Transmission networks for renewable energy sources;
- Hybrid solutions.
