

Special Issue

Frontier (2021): Process Engineering and Control Systems

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will include contributions that highlight the important combination of process engineering and automatic control. The use of process engineering tools such as process optimization based on material, energy balances, mathematical modeling, and simulations, followed by the application of automatic control for streamlining and saving processes, which allow solving and implementing process engineering tasks to minimize process costs, minimize waste production, the design of new recycling technologies, and even new waste-free technologies, are of interest. Therefore, we invite contributions on innovative technical development, reviews, case studies, and analytical and evaluation contributions from various fields that are relevant in the field of process engineering and control systems.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Energies is an international, open access journal in energy engineering and research. The journal publishes original papers, review articles, technical notes, and letters. Authors are encouraged to submit manuscripts which bridge the gaps between research, development and implementation. The journal provides a forum for information on research, innovation, and demonstration in the areas of energy conversion and conservation, the optimal use of energy resources, optimization of energy processes, mitigation of environmental pollutants, and sustainable energy systems.
