10th Anniversary of Fermentation: Feature Papers in the “Fermentation Process Design” Section

Message from the Guest Editors

As we celebrate the 10th anniversary of Fermentation, it is with great excitement that we announce the upcoming Special Issue titled “10th Anniversary of Fermentation: Feature Papers in the 'Fermentation Process Design' Section”. This Special Issue aims to publish high-quality original research and review articles spanning all aspects of fermentation process design. We invite researchers from related fields to contribute and highlight the latest developments in this area. Topics of interest for this Special Issue include, but are not limited to, novel bioreactor and bioprocess designs; the production of macromolecules (e.g., enzymes, proteins, antibodies, and lipids); the production of small molecules (e.g., amino acids, peptides, and vitamins); the bioremediation of pollutants; improved separation methods for the recovery of fermentation products; advanced tools for monitoring and controlling bioreactors; and analyses of bioreactor performance. We eagerly anticipate your innovative and impactful contributions to this special celebration of a decade of progress in fermentation science!
