

Special Issue

The Future of Food Processing –What’s Next?

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue of Foods is focused on “Future Food Processing”. The food industry is constantly changing due to consumer demand to satisfy different lifestyles and wellness and diet trends. Moreover, there is a spotlight on the increasing concern to develop healthier and more sustainable processed food. Sustainable alternatives, using fewer resources, valorizing by-products, and optimizing food processes, are needed, while also reducing waste, to produce high-quality, safe, and nutritious food. Therefore, this Special Issue is open to the submission of research results and/or quality reviews on cutting-edge and new technological approaches related to the processing of food products.
