

Special Issue

Food Contaminants and Human Health

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue focuses on the occurrence of food contaminants and their impact on human health. We invite peers to contribute their latest research papers or reviews to illuminate this issue. Understanding and addressing contaminants is crucial for safeguarding public health as our global food supply becomes more complex. Manuscripts exploring the association of exposure to such contaminants and effects on human health, emerging contaminants, analytical methods, risk assessment, and mitigation strategies are highly encouraged. This Special Issue aims to foster interdisciplinary discussions and provide a platform for innovative solutions to ensure the safety and quality of our food. Researchers, academics, and experts in the field are invited to submit their manuscripts, contributing to the collective knowledge that will benefit society. Join us in advancing the understanding of food contaminants and their impact on human health as we strive for safer and healthier food systems.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
