

Special Issue

Advance in Post-harvest Preservation Technology

Message from the Guest Editors

Fruits and vegetables are important sources of nutrients such as vitamins, minerals, and bioactive compounds, which provide many health benefits. However, due to non optimal postharvest management, large quantities of fresh or fresh-cut fruit and vegetables loss their quality and nutritional values before they reach the consumer. This special issue covers technologies in harvesting, handling, and storage of vegetables, including storage strategies (active packaging, edible coatings, application of nanotechnology in the postharvest technology of vegetable crops, and more) aimed to improve the shelf-life of fresh and fresh-cut fruits and vegetable.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
