Processing and Nutrition of Nuts and Nut-Derived Products

Message from the Guest Editor

Nuts are characterized by the dual orientation of nutrition and flavor, and are one of the nutritional and healthy foods promoted by the WHO and many countries of the world. With the coming of the post-pandemic era, more concerns regarding the nutrition and health of nuts are taken into consideration. In addition, the exploration of its nutritional function, flavor analysis and development of new products have become research hotspots. Therefore, it is of great scientific significance and social practical value to conquer the key technologies for processing nuts and their derived products and analyze their nutritional and flavor codes.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
