

Special Issue

Potato Processing and Comprehensive Utilization of Its By-Products

Message from the Guest Editors

Potatoes are a staple food worldwide, playing a vital role in global food security and economic development and this Special Issue seeks to explore advancements in potato processing technologies and innovative strategies for the sustainable utilization of potato by-products. Topics include novel processing techniques to enhance product quality and functionality, the recovery of high-value compounds from potato by-products, and their applications in food, feed, and other industrial sectors. By promoting resource efficiency and waste reduction, this Special Issue aims to provide a platform for researchers to share insights that foster sustainability and innovation in the potato industry.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
