Applications of Non-destructive Technologies for Agricultural and Food Product Quality Determination

Message from the Guest Editors

Nondestructive methods have the potential to increase sustainability within the agricultural production and food processing industry, through reduced waste, increased safety of our foods, efficient production and processing, and reduced cost. With recent advances in computational analysis, especially with improved machine learning methods and deep learning methods, the accuracy of prediction of food properties is improving, and this is pushing the boundaries of applications with increased reliability. This Special Issue will disseminate recent advances in innovation, technology, and application of the nondestructive approach for food and agricultural product quality determination.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
