Meat Characteristics, Nutrition and Consumption

Message from the Guest Editor

Meat is the flesh and other edible parts of animals that humans prepare and consume. It is a great source of protein, iron, vitamin B12, zinc, and other important nutrients. Meat quality is a complex term, affected by different factors such as genetics, animal feeding systems and nutritional status during production. A deep understanding of all the factors that influence meat quality is necessary in order to improve quality control and their further enhancement. The aim of the Special Issue “Meat Characteristics, Nutrition and Consumption” is to provide knowledge on all the factors that influence the quality of meat, nutritional properties and aspects related to consumer acceptability.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
