

Special Issue

Food Security, Nutrition, and Sustainability in Low- and Middle- Income Countries

Message from the Guest Editors

This edition aims to evaluate and understand Food and Nutritional Security in Low- and Middle-Income Countries, as well as the factors and/or indicators that influence each specific situation.

The article may be methodological in origin, focusing on the specific methodological characteristics used—systematic, scope, integrative and review; it may also be based on secondary data on Food and Nutritional Security, as well as factors that may have interfered with the results. It may also be an article based on primary data from studies that use Food and Nutritional Security and related factors, such as agri-food systems, economic, political, social, cultural, anthropometric, biochemical and dietary situations, among others. It may focus on vulnerable groups, local or national data that may or may not involve territorial assessments.

Original publications cannot have been published in other journals or presented at scientific events.

Original articles must have an opinion from an Ethics Committee.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
