Fermented Foods and Probiotics

Message from the Guest Editor

The field of fermented food and probiotics is increasingly becoming important, not only to consumers due to the potential health benefits of probiotic bacteria, but to researchers and food processors as well who are looking for most effective and safe bacterial strains and modes of delivery in order to be effectively utilized by the human gut. Our goal is to publish original papers to contribute to the knowledge of fermented foods, probiotics, and prebiotics as related to health maintenance, disease prevention, fermentation processes, safety issues, bacterial selection criteria, mechanisms of actions, beneficial effects, validation studies, etc.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
