Diversity, Abundance, and Distribution of Wood-Decay Fungi

Message from the Guest Editors

This Topical Collection aims to provide an overview of the current trends and advances in wood decay mycology from different perspectives; it also encourages the proposition of multi-approach studies consistently focusing on the same object. This Topical Collection therefore aims to collect recent advances in the diversity, abundance, and distribution of wood decay fungi. Potential topics include but are not limited to:

- Field surveys and long-term monitoring;
- Conservation of wood decay fungi and respective hosts/habitats;
- Mycocoenology of wood decay fungi;
- Recent acquisitions and theories in taxonomy;
- Cytological, molecular, and chemical approaches to the study of the biodiversity;
- Wood decay fungi in plant pathology;
- Current distribution of the taxa, biogeographic patterns, and evolutive radiation in wood decay fungi.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Forests (ISSN 1999-4907) is an international and cross-disciplinary, scholarly forestry journal. The distinguished editorial board and refereeing process ensures the highest degree of scientific rigor and review of all published articles. Original research articles and timely reviews are released online, with unlimited free access. Our goal is to have Forests be recognized as one of the foremost publication outlets for high quality, leading edge research in this broad and diverse field. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global forestry community.
