Climate and Land-Use Change Effects on the Biogeography of Woody Plant Species and Biodiversity Conservation

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue seeks to advance our understanding of plant diversity patterns and conservation challenges. We welcome contributions addressing various aspects, including but not limited to, the following:

- Species distribution modeling under climate change scenarios;
- Impact assessment of land use changes on plant communities;
- Conservation genetics and population dynamics;
- Ecosystem service evaluation of threatened plant species;
- Novel conservation strategies and management approaches;
- Historical biogeography and phylogenetic studies;
- Ethnobotanical research on socio-economically important taxa;
- Restoration ecology and habitat rehabilitation;
- Policy implications for biodiversity conservation.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Forests (ISSN 1999-4907) is an international and cross-disciplinary, scholarly forestry journal. The distinguished editorial board and refereeing process ensures the highest degree of scientific rigor and review of all published articles. Original research articles and timely reviews are released online, with unlimited free access. Our goal is to have Forests be recognized as one of the foremost publication outlets for high quality, leading edge research in this broad and diverse field. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global forestry community.

Editor-in-Chief
