

Special Issue

Nutrient Cycling in Forest Ecosystems under Environmental Changes

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to deepen scientific understanding of the environmental impacts on forest nutrient cycling and provide a scientific basis for improved preservation and management of forests. The article types considered for publication are original research, modeling, or review papers. Potential topics include but are not limited to:

- Nutrient cycling in forest ecosystem
- Plant–soil–microbe feedbacks and their impacts on nutrient cycling
- Regulation of nutrients on forest carbon cycling (e.g., carbon formation, turnover, and emission)
- Community composition and diversity of plants and soil microbes in forests
- Impacts of environmental change factors (nitrogen deposition, warming, altered precipitation, management strategies, etc.) on ecological processes and ecosystem multifunctionality

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Forests (ISSN 1999-4907) is an international and cross-disciplinary, scholarly forestry journal. The distinguished editorial board and refereeing process ensures the highest degree of scientific rigor and review of all published articles. Original research articles and timely reviews are released online, with unlimited free access. Our goal is to have Forests be recognized as one of the foremost publication outlets for high quality, leading edge research in this broad and diverse field. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global forestry community.
